Committee Aids Rights Fight in Monroe, N.C.

By John Thayer

In Monroe, destino of the childbirth of the North Carolina town where Negro boys were forced to do stoop labor, a committee has been formed to keep seven-year-old black boys off the job.

This committee is under the direction of Marjorie Moore, a Negro hotel worker in Monroe.

Mr. Moore, who is a member of the Monroe African American Club, said the committee has been formed to keep Negro boys off the job.

"They are just too young to be working," she said. "We want to keep them in school and out of trouble."
J. Edgar Hoover's Flock of Stool Pigeons

By Henry Glickman

A challenge to the F.B.I.'s glorification of the informant was the hostile letter published by the Leftist newspaper, The Militant, in October 1958. This letter criticized J. Edgar Hoover for his role in using informants, describing Hoover as "a thug" who "exploits the poor and the weak." The letter called for a "thug" to be held accountable for his actions.

Mrs. Norman, a former FBI employee, wrote that she had been "instructed" in 1962 to handle the case of Mrs. Jane Schenk, a former FBI employee. Mrs. Norman claimed she had no knowledge of the FBI's activities in the case. In 1963, however, she was questioned by the FBI and had not been informed of the case.

The letter also criticized the FBI's handling of the case of Sam Yablonsky, a former FBI employee, who had been accused of leaking information to the FBI. The letter claimed that Yablonsky had been "instructed" in 1962 to handle the case of Mrs. Jane Schenk, a former FBI employee. Mrs. Norman claimed she had no knowledge of the FBI's activities in the case. In 1963, however, she was questioned by the FBI and had not been informed of the case.

Monroe Journal on N.Y. Strike

The following poem. "An Ode to Sanitation" was written by Eugene Debs and is reprinted from the Oct. 21 Toronto Star.

As we walk along the streets,
As we breathe the air of life,
We see the workers toil,
And on their faces, we see the strife.

They work all day and night,
And their hands are rough and calloused.
They labor hard for a living,
And on the money, they have to count.

But we, the people of the land,
Who live in luxury and ease,
We forget their toil and hard work,
We only think of our own desires.

So let us stand up and help,
To give them a hand and a heart.
Let us show them that we care,
And that we value their hard work.

And when we hear the strike calls,
Let us not be deaf to their plea.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the picket lines,
Let us not cross them in fear.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we hear the police sirens,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

For they are our brothers and sisters,
And they are working hard for us.
Let us show them that we care,
And help them to win their rights.

And when we see the police cars,
Let us not be afraid to stand.
Let us support them with our hearts,
And help them to win their rights.

Harvard Law Record on Race Courts

Until recently, if you had braved a trip down the halls of the Southern courts, the editorial said in part, you would have found a large number of articles that focused upon the struggle of Negroes in the South for the right to vote. But even more important than this is the Negroes' fight for life, for their freedom, in cases where thousands of Southerners are tried and often executed. The net effect is basically against the Negroes.

On occasion a particularly glaring example came to our notice, a white supremacist "kissing" case. (See story page 1.)

The investigation quickly exposed how the Bill of Rights had been completely violated in the case of the Negro woman who claimed she was not given a fair trial because she did not have a lawyer. The investigation also revealed that the legal fiction that a defendant must prove his innocence is a fiction and that it is the government that must prove its case.

Governor Frazar is to be commended for this action. We hope he will continue to be as bold in his efforts to combat injustice in these cases as he has been in the past.
